The growth in the sector, supported by series of reforms, has not only resulted in significant residential and commercial real estate, but also complemented the development of physical and social infrastructure of the country.

The liberal economic policies, aimed at improving private participation and opening of economy to foreign investments, adopted by the Indian Government has helped in capitalizing the strong fundamentals of the Indian economy which include young population, rising urbanization and a growing middle class population. It is seen that since the year 2000, Indian GDP has quadrupled and is expected to become the third largest economy worth USD 6.6 trillion by 2028.

The real estate sector which opened its door to foreign investors in 2005, has witnessed an inflow of about USD 10.5 billion, which is about 5 percent of the total FDI inflow since 2005. Several notable global investors have invested and exited in India over last decade. Several rounds of fund raising have been made and these investments have yielded mixed returns.

However, with the coming of foreign investments in the period commencing from 2007 to 2011 funds that have invested in the Real estate have either made exit or are on the verge of exit pressure. This has made the services of financial firms to come ahead and provide hand holding to the foreign investors to smoothly exit the investment or to protect & enhance investor's interest in case of funds which end of tenure is still some years in the future.

Retail, hospitality and commercial real estate are also growing significantly, providing the much-needed infrastructure for India's growing needs.

The Indian real estate sector has witnessed high growth in recent times (last 2 years) with the rise in demand for office as well as residential spaces. Most recently Approximately USD- 3-4 bn od dedicated foreign funds have been raised by various institutions.
